

What Man Had to Work for He Won't Throw Away, Like the Animals

The world that we knew at the beginning of this century was an orderly creation measured in three dimensions and understood by man through his five senses. Science contributed the first great unsettling factor when it disclosed that there is a fourth dimension lying out yonder in the limitless reaches of the Universe. We are puzzled by the report that the occupants of a space-ship making a roundtrip between earth and another celestial body might be gone 200 years but would be only 10 years older themselves — a curious telescoping of time into vast distances.

And now science is unsettling us further by declaring and proving that man hasn't merely five senses but perhaps a couple of dozen. For instance, he has a sense of balance, a sense of electric shock, and he also reacts to infra-red radiations (as opposed to heat radiations) — all of which are in addition to the conventional five senses mentioned in the textbook.

And where did man learn about these additional senses? Why he learned about 'em from the so-called lower animals.

The No. 1 disclosure along this line has already received wide publicity. The British discovered radar during World War II and credited it with winning the fight to save their country — radar, the magic invention which pierced darkness and storm and informed man of approaching danger. But along came some other scientists and discovered that the bat has been radar-equipped by nature for thousands of years, sending out a high-frequency signal which bounces back from obstructions, enabling the bat to navigate safely in total darkness.

My facts about the bat are recalled from a scientific report of several years ago. But some other striking discoveries in the animal kingdom are reported by Ivan T. Sanderson in an article "The Animals Have It on Us" in the current Saturday Evening Post. I am naming a few:

The fiddler crab has a built-in barometric device which tells him 2 hours ahead of time that a hurricane is due and enables him to scurry inland to safety.

The Dolphin has an under-water sounding system that permits two-way communication at distances which scientists call incredible.

There is an eel in the Nile river which generates electricity and discharges it in short bursts not only to "talk" back and forth with other eels but also using it as a radar navigational aid. As our author puts it:

"It is a somewhat disturbing thought that a rather dismal fish has for millions of years been using a device which we only discovered in the nick of time to help democracy in the last war. What other things may animals have 'discovered', before even the first ape man walked this earth, which we still do not even suspect?"

The story doesn't tell me there is any evidence as yet that animals also hold secret of the atom and hydrogen bombs — but it does give me one sure thought for man and his civilization. It is this:

Nature endowed the lower animal with many wonderful gifts, and all "for free"; gifts which man had to match with tedious study while building up today's complex and wonderful machines. The talents of the animals may have helped preserve their individual safety but certainly the animals did nothing for the security of the species. The wisdom of man has brought up today's civilization the hard way — and it is not too much for forward thinking men to hope and believe that the same wisdom which developed engines both of construction and destruction will eventually build enduring peace in this confused world.

Suggests Traffic Problem Could Be Solved by People Simply Living in the Supermarkets

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — America is overlooking a simple, easy solution to one of its biggest worries—the traffic problem.

The answer lies in the supermarkets. Why not live in them instead of just shopping in them?

Now wait. That isn't as silly as it sounds. Let me explain.

What causes the nation's traffic jammed anyway? Because we have to go too many different places to get things done. A man lives in the suburbs, he needs his own car, a train and a bus ride to get to his office in a city skyscraper. The movie house he patronizes is in one direction, the shopping center where his wife buys the groceries lies in the second direction, his kids' school in a third point of the compass, and their church in a fourth.

It is all this traveling back and forth that causes traffic jams. Building more and bigger roads eventually just leads to more and bigger traffic jams, as they create more places for you to go.

Why not simplify life by bringing everything a family needs into one coordinated center that would remove all necessity for traveling? The supermarket is already a long step in this direction. Today

Rosston Road Paving Assured Early Next Year

Plans and specifications for the paving of Highway 4 from Hempstead County line to Rosston are being drawn up by the Arkansas Highway Commission and contracts will be let probably within five months, it was learned here today.

It was prematurely reported by a Little Rock newspaper Sunday that Highway 4 was one of several proposed jobs dropped by the Highway Commission due to right-of-way refusals. Residents along the route donated required right-of-way.

This report is not correct. Judge C. C. Mitchell of Nevada County and Judge U. G. Garrett of Hempstead have signed right-of-way acceptance papers which are in Little Rock, Frank McLarty, a member of the Arkansas State Police Commission, verified following a telephone conversation with highway officials.

A survey, plans and specifications will require from 60 to 90 days and contracts will be let within about five months. It is safe to say that actual construction on the road will probably start by late spring, Mr. McLarty said.

The estimated cost of the paving is $407,000.

A similar project has been carried out on Highway 24 from Blevins to Prescott.

Agreement on Jap Defense Force Ready

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON — State Department officials hope to conclude this week a military and arrangement providing U. S. support for the development of a relatively modest Japanese defense force.

Information available on the progress of negotiations so far indicates that in the end neither side will get all it wants: (1) Japan will not get a large-scale, long-term economic aid program; (2) the United States will not get assurance of as large a defense force as it would like to see in Japan. Nevertheless, informants said today the talks have basically been satisfactory and should result in substantially increasing Far Eastern security and eventually taking some of the load off the United States.

Neutrals Split, Unable to Carry Out Explanations

By JAMES MORRISSEY

PANMUNJOM (UP) — Indian Chairman L. Gen. K. S. Thimayya said today the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission is split so badly it is unable to carry out its work and there is "very small" chance explanations to bulky war prisoners will be resumed.

After a two-hour meeting of the deadlocked five nation commission, Thimayya said that explanations to unrepatriated prisoners to persuade them to return home is blocked because the commission cannot produce the prisoners the Communists want.

Court Confirms Sentence of Death

By L. ON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK — The Arkansas Supreme Court today affirmed the death sentence of "Indian Bill" Jenkins who paid a roadhouse orchestra to play "Shotgun Boogie" a few hours before he killed a 16-year-old girl and wounded two other women.

Jenkins was convicted in Garland Circuit Court for the fatal shooting of Cleo Jones on Feb. 17, 1952. The jury fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair, but the execution date passed while his appeal was pending.

Gov. Cherry will set a new execution date if the Supreme Court overrules a possible motion for a rehearing of its decision.

The state charged that Jenkins shot the girl to death in the home of Lester Cox, Jenkins' partner in the livestock business, and operator of a roadhouse where Miss Jones was employed.

The slaying followed a quarrel between Jenkins and Mrs. Marie Pitts, who had been employed by him several years as a housekeeper. Mrs. Pitts was wounded in the arm and shoulder before Miss Jones was slain.

According to testimony at the trial Jenkins and Mrs. Pitts had quarreled at the roadhouse over her plan to visit a sister at Pine Bluff. Miss Jones was to accompany her.

Prosecution witnesses testified that Jenkins, Mrs. Pitts and Miss Jones drove in his truck to his home. He entered the house and got a pistol, and then started to the nearby Cox home to which his Continued on Page Two

Slavs Refuse to Withdraw From Trieste

BELGRADE (UP) — Yugoslavia refused today to withdraw troops and tanks from the disputed Trieste area, insisting they were there for Yugoslavia's own defense.

Mikhail Tito's government rejected an Italian proposal that both sides withdraw their forces from the free territory.

The Yugoslav state secretariat of foreign affairs in a statement yesterday turned down the Italian proposal as "obvious hypocrisy" designed to mislead world opinion. The statement, carried by the official Yugoslav News Agency Tanjug, said the Italian proposal was "made with the object of creating a certain impression among the uninformed section of the world public. The military demonstrations from the Italian side began as far back as August, although Yugoslavia had not given the least cause for this, nor did she take any similar measures at that time or throughout the month of September."

"The proposal of the Italian government is further calculated to cover up the reasons which compelled the Yugoslav government in October to take precautionary measures," the statement said. "These measures came after the decision of the U. S. A. and British governments to hand Trieste over to Italy, which the Italian government immediately accepted."

"After this situation was created in which the rights and interests of Yugoslavia were seriously threatened and the Yugoslav government justifiably characterized this situation as a threat of aggression the foreign office statement said."

In Rome an Italian foreign office spokesman said the Yugoslav attitude toward Italy's proposal showed "a clear-cut desire to provoke incidents."

Cattlemen in Washington for Meet with Benson, to Demand Price Supports on Livestock

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Benson today told a caravan of cattlemen, seeking government supports for cattle prices, that he has an "open mind." But he did a support program would raise tremendous obstacles.

Benson drew a burst of applause from the 350 cattlemen from 30 states when he said he would consider the facts supporting their request for price supports on cattle.

But only a handful of cattlemen applauded when the agriculture secretary said that so far he is inclined to believe that an indirect program, such as is already under way, is the more practical and feasible policy of supporting cattle prices.

WASHINGTON — A delegation of 50 embattled cattlemen warned on for a meeting today with Secretary of Agriculture Benson by shouting approval of demands for price supports on livestock.

The cattlemen, who came here from all parts of the country, held a mass meeting before their appointment with Benson.

The most popular chord struck at this meeting was the often repeated statement that the only solution to the woes of the cattlemen was government price support such as are given to many grains and other crops.

The mass meeting selected a 12-member committee of spokesmen. This committee in turn chose Dennis Cresswell of Colorado Springs as chief spokesman for the entire delegation.

James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, which sponsored the caravan to Washington, and Gus Gelsler, an assistant to Patton, addressed the meeting.

Patton said that the sponsors of the caravan were not trying to sell the delegates on the Farmers Union program for livestock but were going to leave it up to the cattlemen to hammer out recommendations for themselves.

Search Starts for Young Baby Sitter

LA CROSSE, Wis. (UP) — Police believed today that an attractive 15-year-old baby sitter was kidnapped from a neighbor's home and carried off in a car after a bloody struggle.

A mass search was expected to resume today for Evelyn Hartley, the daughter of a La Crosse State College professor who has been missing since Saturday night.

A detachment from the state crime laboratory was also expected to check evidence in the girl's disappearance.

The main clue in the search was a pool of blood found 10 feet from the home of Dilgo Rasmussen, whose two-month-old baby had been entrusted to Evelyn's care. A trail of blood led from the Continued on Page Two

Practically All of This Area Reports Rain

By The Associated Press

Doubtful rain fell on much of Arkansas last night and it still was falling today, bringing unsubdued optimism from crop and forest experts.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said that at 6 a. m. today, the town of Forester in Scott County had received the highest rainfall — 1.50 inches. Other measurements included Arkadelphia 1.15 inches; Camden 1.10; Mena 1.22; Nashville 1.11; DeQueen 1.10; Clarendon 70; Fayetteville .65; Little Rock and Texarkana .60.

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — Rains that dented the drought from the Southwest to New England threatened some areas of Oklahoma and Texas today with floods, and a violent storm caused damage at Houston, Tex.

A squall line moving ahead of a cold front brought more rain last night and today to Oklahoma and Texas, where drought has cost $850,000,000 this year alone. It also posed a tornado threat.

The rains stopped today in Western Oklahoma and in all but the Gulf Coast and the extreme east portion of Texas.

A tremendous wind and rainstorm ripping into Houston early today, toppling small buildings, smashing downtown store windows and stripping trees of their limbs.

Power lines were ripped throughout the city by winds measured at 80 miles an hour at the downtown weather bureau.

Serial Numbers of Missing Money Listed

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP) — Police Lt. Louis Shoulters, who arrested the Greenlease kidnapers here on an informant's tip, said today he would refuse to testify before a federal grand jury about the case. The grand jury, which convened tomorrow in Kansas City, Mo., has summoned Shoulters and his landlady, Miss Jane George, along with other officers connected with the arrest and the handling of nearly half the $600,000 ransom found in kidnap-slayer Carl Austin Hall's apartment.

"I'm going to stand on my constitutional rights and refuse to testify," Shoulters said. "I'm not afraid of incriminating myself but I refuse to disclose the names of my informants that helped me catch the kidnapers."

In Kansas City, U. S. District Attorney Edward R. Scheffler, who has announced he will take personal charge of the prosecution of the kidnap-slayers, would not comment on Shoulters' new stand.

ST. LOUIS — A nationwide distribution of serial numbers of the missing ransom money in the Greenlease kidnaping case was begun today with authorities here apparently stalled in their search for the $303,20.

The complex aftermath of the kidnap-slaying of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease of Kansas City, Mo., was highlighted by these weekend developments as an inquiry into police handling of the case has heard an end.

Police Lt. Louis Shoulters, credited with breaking the case, resigned Saturday with an angry charge that the inquiry by high police officials here has destroyed his reputation as an officer.

A tip on the missing ransom money that produced a flurry of FBI activity here turned out to be false.

Mrs. Elizabeth Eleanor Curtis, 29-year-old St. Louis blonde, accused of giving the false information. Continued on Page Two

Four Weekend Wrecks, Three Persons Hurt

A wreck on Highway 67 Saturday resulted in three persons being seriously injured while three wrecks in the city caused only property damage.

Early Saturday an auto, driven by Ralph Schultz of San Diego, California, hit another auto driven by J. C. Mann of Texarkana while attempting to pass a third vehicle three miles east on Highway 67.

M. and Mrs. George Strighan of Texarkana, riding with Mann, were painfully injured, received first aid here and were taken to a Texarkana hospital. Mrs. Schultz was critically injured but was reported to have spent a "restful" night in Julia Chester Hospital. Four other persons riding in the cars escaped with minor bruises.

Investigating State Officer Guy Downing and Deputy Sheriff Jim Cook said Schultz would be charged with improper passing. Both vehicles were badly damaged. In the city at Hazel and Division autos driven by George Witherspoon and H. C. Johnson collided with damage resulting. This wreck occurred Sunday.

On Saturday at Third and Laurel autos driven by Phil Sutton and Billy James Berry ran together with fender and bumper damage resulting.

A United Transport tractor ran into the back of a car parked on East Third causing heavy damage. The car was owned by Olen Hollis. Investigating city officers said the transport driver apparently went to sleep at the wheel.

Underground Battles Reds in E. Germany

BERLIN — West Berlin newspapers say police of the Soviet East Zone have launched a new big campaign for fighters of the anti-Communist underground and have clashed with them in several gun battles.

An estimated 20 police have been killed or wounded and 10 partisans arrested in the past two weeks as a result of the sweep, centering in wooded areas southeast of here, according to the reports.

West Berlin's Socialist-edited newspaper Telegraph said yesterday the latest outbreak reportedly took place in the Cottbus district, near Poland. Der Tag, another West Berlin daily, said 2,500 police converged on the area, 60

DOROTHY DIX

Wants "Obedient" Wife

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a young man of 20, and have been going steady with a girl for three years (she is the same age). Although I love her, I'm afraid some of her faults may cause conflict. She wants her way all the time, loses her temper at the drop of a hat, and isn't a bit interested in learning cooking or other domestic task. I know I'm not a saint—I have a hot temper.

am the possessive type, and want a wife who will obey my slightest wish. Do you think the girl will change after marriage and that we will be happy.

He May Wait For Ages

Answer: Your marriage may not be a happy one, it surely will be interesting—especially to the neighbors who will listen eagerly to the battles. Whether you marry this girl who at least has a mind of her own, or a nincompoop who'll be silly enough to fall for a cancelled fellow you assuredly will not be a happy husband. Happiness cannot exist without consideration of others and that's one quality completely missing from your make-up. Of course you're young, and much more childish than the average 20-year-old. Time may mercifully give you a sense, but in the meantime I think you had better try and acquire some on your own. Subservient women who give in to a man's slightest wish are getting rather rare. You may be an old man by the time you find one.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 27 and married to a widower of 31. Once a year he sends money to his first wife's family for flowers to be placed on her grave. I don't resent the gesture, but my friends say I am foolish and should stop him from buying the flowers.

Answer: I think, my dear, that your so-called friends are of the great company of trouble-makers. Your marriage must be a very happy one, otherwise they wouldn't be so eager to spoil it. Your husband would be a sorry specimen of mankind if he didn't still pay tribute to his first wife. It is a happy sign that he's a person of fidelity—certainly a quality that augurs well for your own happiness.

Dear Miss Dix: At 14, I've been going with a certain boy for over a year. Friends say this is an unusual length of time for two people our age to go together. Our parents get along wonderfully well together and so do we. My problem is, do you think I should get acquainted with other boys? Bill doesn't like the idea and says he's not interested in any other girl.

Answer: It is unusual for teenagers to cling to each other so long and it is usually not a recommended procedure. However, if you and Bill are so congenial, and your parents don't object to your dating each other exclusively, certainly it would be foolish to break a pleasant friendship because of a technicality.

47 Colleges Stay Unbeaten

NEW YORK (AP) — Forty-seven college football teams remained undefeated and untied today, following an eventful weekend which saw powerful Michigan State, among others, taste defeat for the first time this season.

Penn. (Neb.) State Teachers heads the list with seven victories. Maryland is the leader among the major schools with six wins. Baylor has five triumphs and Notre Dame four.

Porkers Play Aggies at L. R. Saturday Night

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference football race pushes toward the halfway mark this week with Baylor and Southern Methodist the only undefeated teams.

Baylor, unbeaten for the season in five games and now favored to make it all the way, faced down the Trojan Texas Christian at Waco Saturday.

Southern Methodist meets the team it always had rather than any other—Texas—a Dallas. The Longhorns, although losing to Rice 13-10 last week, have showed a marked up turn.

Baylor edged Texas A&M 14-13 in the top game of the conference last week as tackle James Ray Smith booted two extra points, and the thunderous Baylor ground attack wiped the Aggies from the unbeaten ranks.

Five of the seven members still are in the fight for the conference championship. But Texas, Texas A&M and Rice have 1-1 records and defeat for either will plunge it from contention.

Texas A&M might find itself in that shape Saturday night. The Aggies play Arkansas at Little Rock. Arkansas isn't going anywhere but would like to make it that way for somebody else, too.

Rice plays Kentucky at Houston Saturday night in an intersectional game.

Southern Methodist ran into a tougher ball club than anticipated last week when it met often-beaten Kansas. The Mustangs won 14-0.

Texas Christian was falling to Penn State 27-21 and the two showings injured the conference's intersectional record. The league now has won 11 games out of 18 against outside foes.

Giardello Is Favored Over Cartier

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — (Reversible) Giardello, who won, lost and won in the same fight with Billy Graham year ago, is a 2-1 favorite over New York's Walter Cartier tonight in a middleweight bout at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway.

The Philadelphia boxer never has lost at the Parkway, where Cartier was stopped by Bobo Olson and split two decisions with Garth Punter. Giardello is the No. 3 contender in the division, now topped by Olson. The bout will be seen on DuMont TV in some parts of the country.

George Arango, a newblood, will try to reverse a Sept. 10 upset by Freddy (Red Top) Davis when they meet Friday at Madison Square Garden. Arango was favored to win the light weight title the night he fought Jimmy Carter, but was stopped in the 13th round. Now he is No. 5 in the ring ratings.

Davis, now 28, has been a hot scrapper this year, winning five of six starts. Although he whipped Tommy Collins, Charley Riley, Fabela Chavez, Cecil Schoonmaker and Arango in '53 his career record is barely over .500 with 50-48-2 for 100 pro starts. That's the usual Friday radio (ABC) and TV (NBC) Garden show.

Cleveland presents an international middleweight fight, the third in the country within a week, when Rocky Castellani boxes Frances' Mickey Laurent Wednesday on TV (CBS). Castellani, third contender, has been moving up fast since he adopted Cleveland as his aim.

Barbara Winner at Home Town

TEXARKANA (AP) — Texarkana's Miller Barber, No. 1 man on the University of Arkansas golf team, chased a three-hole deficit to win the 18th annual Four-State Invitational Golf Tournament here yesterday afternoon.

He defeated Glen Fowler of Oklahoma City, 2 and 1.

Barber, a slight favorite as they teed off, was three down at No. 8. He rallied in No. 7 made the turn only two down.

Barber birdied the eleventh to shave the lead to one hole and squared the match on the 13th.

Barber dropped a six-footer on No. 13 for his fourth birdie of the round to take the lead for the first time. He dropped his fifth birdie on the match on No. 15 and went two up when Fowler missed his putt.

Barber halted his seventh hole to take the match.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

ARKANSAS Sportettes

CARL BELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Harold (Pee Wee) Reese, the first citizen of Louisville, Ky., is believed by most baseball men to have a hammarlock on the glamorous job of managing the Brooklyn Dodgers next season. His predecessor, Chuck Dressen, doesn't consider that anyone else is in the race.

Practically everyone who has been quoted on the subject, including his teammates, agrees that the tactful, intelligent little shortstop should get the post surrendered by Dressen in pique at not being given a two-year contract. There could be no more popular choice with the fans of Brooklyn.

That just about makes it unanimous, and we hereby add our vote in favor of the former marbled-rhyming champ — that is, if he really wants to take on what shapes up as one of the toughest tasks in baseball. Perhaps it's a challenge that couldn't be refused, but Pee Wee should at least be advised of the odds he's bucking.

In the first place, any manager who takes over a pennant-winning club is on the spot. He can't do any better and he might do worse. He is under an abnormal strain from the first day of the season.

Another thing, Pee Wee, is that these fellows you'll be called upon to direct and to discipline are your old teammates, the same buddies with whom you've spent so many happy hours sitting around and gabbing and maybe even trimming at golf on an off-day. The already think you're a wonderful guy now, but you've been told by a man who knows from experience that they can change.

This fellow, who was as great a star, at his position as you are at yours, undertook a few years back to make the same big jump you are contemplating. His wasn't pennant contender, even so, but he still found his position so distressing that he didn't even ask that his contract be renewed after one season.

Some of his former pals, he soon discovered, resented taking orders from him on the field and took advantage of his good nature to paint the town after the game.

But Bucky Harris became the "boy manager" of the Washington Senators in 1924 and led a fourth-place club to two straight flags. In more recent times Lou Boudreau at Brooklyn, Joe Cronin at Boston and Lou Boudreau at Cleveland proved it could be done, but they were the exceptions.

Casualties of the experiment have been heavy. Taking just the past few years, there was Tommy Holmes of the Boston Braves, Ducky Walters of Cincinnati, Marty Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals, Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox. At the moment, Freddie Hutchinson at Detroit and Phil Cavarretta of the Chicago Cubs are having trying experiences.

But don't let this scare you off, Pee Wee. If you get that call, a manager's got to start somewhere.

Giant Killer Now a Giant in the AIC

By The Associated Press

The giant killer has become the giant in Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference football.

College of the Ozarks, the tiny Clarksville school which for years has amazed the league by just coming close or by knocking off a favorite now and then, has moved to the front of the championship race so convincingly that there is grave doubt anyone can catch up now.

The Mountaineers were consigned to the cellar of — at best — fifth place in all the pre-season forecasts. They confounded the experts first by walloping Southern State, one of the title favorites. Then, last Saturday night they plastered the other pre-season choice, Henderson, 27-7.

Conen Frank Koon's mighty 30 gridmen — who make up nearly half of Ozarks' entire male enrollment — still have three conference games to play and can clinch at least a tie for the crown by winning any two of them. They'll be expected now, however, to grab first place outright.

Lennie Qualls, the multi-threat all-AIC fullback, showed the way for the Mountaineers over Henderson. He scored two touchdowns and kicked a field goal and two extra points.

Arkansas State Teachers finally looked as good on the field as they do on paper as they surprised Southern State 19-12. The defending champs, weakened by the absence of several key players, were no match for the Tutors' Jimmy Webster. Webster ran for one touchdown and passed for another.

The Arkansas Tech Wonder-Boys, a fast bunch of youngsters who are getting better with experience and could prove troublesome in the last half of the campaign, exploded for a 40-14 conquest of Little Rock Junior College. Freshman halfback Travis Hartwick led the slaughter with two T.D.s.

In another non-conference game, Arkansas A&M methodically ran up a 21-7 edge over Northeast Louisiana.

Every Week Important in Pro Loop

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell must have been phsyhic when he made out the National Football League schedule because weekly, without fail, the slate of games has included at least one with important bearing on the standings.

There was a game a week ago between Cleveland and Washington with the Browns winning to take undisputed lead of the Eastern Conference.

And then yesterday there was not one but two involving leaders of the Western Conference. The Detroit Lion, 1952 league champions, edged the San Francisco 49ers out of a share of the top rung, 14-10. But the Los Angeles Rams kept pace with the Lions by downing the Chicago Bears 38-24.

The victories of the Lions and the Rams made Bell's schedule look good again for the two teams meet Sunday in Los Angeles with each showing a record of four victories and a third place tie with the others and one defeat.

The 49ers' setback dropped them behind the Colts, who trounced the Washington Redskins 27-17. Each has a 3-2 record.

In the Eastern Conference the unbeaten Browns remained alone at the top with five victories after their usual close game with the New York Giants. The final score on the rain-soaked New York Polo Ground gridiron was 7-0. Pittsburgh moved into second place on the strength of its 31-14 Saturday night triumph over Green Bay.

But it remained for the Philadelphia Eagles to put on the Philadelphia show of the weekend. They defeated the whittled Chicago Cardinals 56-17 to tie their own best scoring performance and give the Cards their worst NFL drubbing.

The 49ers, who dropped a 24-21 defeat to the Lions at Detroit recently, had a 10-0 lead over the defending champions when Bobby Layne cut loose with two long passes. The first one, late in the second period, went to Dorne Pihlbe, who ran 5 yards to complete a 47-yard scoring play. On the first play of the final quarter, Layne shot a long aerial down the middle to Ollie Cluge for the winning tally.

By contrast, the Rams left the field at halftime on the long and

State Needs Funds to Mine Rare Ore

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas needs additional financial assistance to continue exploration for columbium, a rare mineral used in manufacturing jet engines.

State Geologist Norman F. Williams says attempts to interest private business in mining the mineral have failed, and the Air Force has shown little or no interest in the venture.

State geologists, who were hunting for uranium, recently discovered the only known columbium deposits in the United States near Magnet Cove, Ark.

Winning Streaks Ended in Play Saturday

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1953 college football season, you might say, will start next Saturday for just about every top team in the country except Notre Dame.

Frank Leahy's legions today stood head and shoulders over the pack and if they don't crush Navy just as they've beaten down all their opposition so far the experts will be jumping off high buildings in droves.

The moment, the longest winning streak among the major schools is a modest 11 compiled by West Virginia, which won six last year and has won five more this season.

For Georgia Tech, which led before the Notre Dame powerhouse, and Michigan State, which dropped a 6-0 decision to Purdue, hitherto the patsy of the Big Ten, the dream world is gone. Now they're back in reality.

The Engineers had run up a string of 31 games without a defeat, although they were tied twice, before Johnny Lattner and company slugged them 27-14 last Saturday.

Michigan State had won 28 in a row before getting its communique from Purdue, which had dropped four games without getting in the win column. To make the defeat even more humiliating, the Boilermakers, who snapped a 39-game Notre Dame string in 1950, hadn't been able to hold any opponent to less than 14 points, but they effectively bottled up the great Spartan backs and made their only touchdowns on a 55-yard drive that took 10 plays. Dan Pobe Jewski, former Michigan State student, crashed over from the 1.

Anyone want to bet against Purdue when they play Illinois Saturday?

The Big Ten race is now scrambled like breakfast eggs. Michigan, which was supposed to give State a run for its money, also was the victim of a mighty upset. Minnesota, no great shakes, trounced the

Army Can't Abolish Army-Navy Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says it has authority to close but not to abolish the Army-Navy hospital at Hot Springs, Ark.

When the Army announced recently that it planned to shut down the installation, Arkansas congressmen said that since the hospital was authorized by an act of Congress, it would take a similar document to close it.

However, Army officials said yesterday that their order was within the law.

That left Illinois, which beat Syracuse 20-13, in undisputed possession of first place in the loop. Navy perhaps was spending its time on Franklin Field looking ahead to the Notre Dame game. At any rate, Penn. the Ivy League outfit with the suicidal schedule, beat the Middies, ranked No. 10 in the weekly Associated Press poll, 9-6, in another major upset.

West Virginia, after slugging Virginia Military Institute 52-20, seems to have clear sailing the rest of the way. Penn State is its next and probably strongest opponent.

Whatever the reason — and it's probably the one-platoon system — the picture is completely confused right below Notre Dame. Oklahoma, which got off to a poor start, seems to be snapping back in stride. It knocked off Colorado, 27-20 Saturday.

Another strong outfit is Baylor, which took care of Texas A&M 14-13. The Bruins still are unbeaten and rule the choice to win the Southwest Conference title.

On the Pacific Coast, UCLA, despite its upset at the hands of Stanford a week ago, could take the conference title. The Uclans, warmed up to the California game Saturday by slaughtering Washington State 44-7. Southern Cal took a lot of the wind out of California by peating the Golden Bears 32-20.

In the South, it is Maryland all the way. The Terps had a day off Saturday after overcoming Miami (Fla.) Friday. Their next opponent is South Carolina.

Red Heads Don't Cry

by ROY L. FOLEY

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

LINDA knew that Nancy Kelly had no idea of her own power to attract men. She knew that there were a lot of Nancy Kellys in the world whose paths never led them beyond a "humdrum" existence. They never met men. They slaved away in obscure, monotonous jobs, got tired, faded in looks, and opportunity passed them by.

By opportunity, Linda meant men. Rich men. They represented luxury, idleness, danger, adventure to any woman. She lived by her wits, and one's wits grew sharper with constant use. She exulted in matching her wits against men's wits, and the more dangerous the match the better she enjoyed the game.

Certainly, at this point of the game with Phil Stanley, she wasn't going to let more ingenuities sort of a girl, with violet eyes and a blaze of copper hair, walk away with Phil. She would destroy the rival. It should be so easy as to be laughable. But how?

She had lain awake nights plotting now. She had one idea. She had gotten it on the day that she visited Nancy's shop and saw the puffing, jewel-laden dowager coming into the shop. Later the idea seemed silly.

Anyway, she would tell Spike about it. Spike knew all the tricks. He had a genius for working up ideas into action.

There was that unheeded obstacle of Sam Sykes, once a member of the old ring in Miami, by some crazy coincidence up here in Milwaukee, married to a sister of Nancy Kelly, and trying to go straight.

Straight to the extent that he had a lapse the first time he saw opportunity to make some quick and easy money. Of course he had muffed it. Sam was a coward. He couldn't work alone. He'd muffed anything without Spike. Adams swinging the whip over him.

Well, Spike would know what to do about that, too. Spike was a wonder.

Spike was at the apartment door now. Two short rings, a long and a short.

Linda doused her cigarette in the dregs of a highball. Her temples were throbbing. She hadn't felt this way since Spike had advised a spit-up when things were getting hot for them all in Miami. Spike's ring was like a shot in the arm. It whipped her blood. It meant danger, and danger was the breath of life to Linda Van Vliet.

She loosened the belt on the door. They didn't speak until Spike was well inside the apartment and the door closed behind him. Walls, even in as genteel an apartment building as this, had a way of hearing.

"Pretty swell, Cassie. Looks like you're doing the society act again."

"It's wonderful the way you do these things, Spike. You should have been a detective. Only I told you my name is not Cassie. It's Linda. Linda Van Vliet."

"Where'd you pick that one?"

"Part of a novel. Part out of a Chicago telephone directory."

"How are you living up to it?"

"Famously. It's gone over big in this town."

"No questions asked?"

"Not too many. I've dodged them all."

"What's your racket in this town?"

"A young, hot-blooded, blue-blooded millionaire."

"Sounds good. Same old story, I suppose. You're going to get him in deep, then allow him to buy you off?"

"That's the general idea."

"How many times have you worked that before?"

"Don't be silly, just once. I'm only 23."

"You look 20."

"I didn't get you up here for compliments, Spike. I want your advice."

"Shoot."

"There's a little redhead by the name of Kelly that's got my millionaire going gaga. He doesn't know he's going gaga yet, but I can see the writing on the wall."

"Sounds interesting."

"Listen, Spike, here's the whole story, right from the start..."

An hour later the cut glass decanter on the cocktail table beside Linda's chaise longue was an island in a sea of cigarette stubs.

Linda had told every detail of her plot to victimize Phil Stanley, or Nancy Kelly and the shop, or Sam Sykes' marriage to Nancy's sister, or Sam's abortive effort to put a job on the Stanley Construction company. She even added the detail of Nancy's employment in the shop as a model.

Spike had listened with hardly an interruption beyond a few questions. He kept running his hand over his heavy bearded jaws, in the manner that Linda knew so well.

"What would you do, Spike, if you were me? Give the thing up, get out of this town?"

"I would not."

"You really mean it, Spike?"

"Of course I mean it. You're not going to let a few little complications scare you out, are you? You haven't lost your guts, have you, Cassie?"

"The name's Linda, please. I've told you half a dozen times."

"All right, Linda. Give me some more of that dope about the stuff Sam got on that company... what do you call it?"

"Phil's dad's company, the Stanley Construction company."

"Is it still any good?"

"It ought to be. The trial's been dragging on for half a year. There's been an adjournment for a number of months, according to the papers. The judge has been sick."

Spike purred himself another drink.

"Why? What's on your mind, Spike?"

"Oh I was just thinking—what's that stuff about your spoiling the reputation of the redhead, doing a snatch or something in her shop?"

Linda repeated parts of her story over again. She said that while coming out of Nancy's shop she got an idea when she saw a lot of jewels on a pretty-eyed old dowager. She said she had an idea that somehow she could snatch some jewels, or money, or some-

"thing" from a customer in the shop, perhaps plant them somewhere and make Nancy Kelly or her sister look "guilty as hell."

"Plant them where?"

"In the shop, (dolt, or in the redhead's purse. Hell, Spike, it was just an idea. I've got to do something. There would be publicity. Phil Stanley's name would be brought into it. I could see to that, and old J. G. Stanley, his father would have a hemorrhage. And his mother—you ought to see his mother. She's one of those touch-not old aristocrats. This Kelly person is just a nobody who lives down by the railroad tracks someplace. I've got to—"

"Cassie—I mean Linda—keep your shirt on. The idea may be all right. If you're so hipped on ruining the redhead's competition it should be easy. A gal with your looking, you're getting soaked."

"I've got to have your help, Spike. Why don't you move into this town. It hasn't been worked for years."

"Maybe I will. That stuff about Sam miffing the shaken-down sounds interesting. We've got to get Sam up here, talk him into something."

Spike took another drink.

"Say, Linda."

"Yes."

"Sam hasn't forgotten he's a bigamist, has he?"

"Summons of Sam Sykes to Linda's apartment was accomplished the next night."

"It was fast work for Linda but Spike Adams said it had to be done that way. He was anxious to get back to Chicago where he'd been working of considerably more importance to do. He didn't tell Linda what work, nor did she ask him."

"If there's a little job for me to do here, let's get it over with," was the way he put it.

"People didn't ask Spike Adams too many questions. They just did what he told them to do. Just being in his presence brought back all the old times to Linda. It all seemed like yesterday, with Spike the big captain whipping out orders to his lieutenants."

The lieutenants usually did all the work and Spike always got the biggest scoop of the gravy. Shakedown, protection, bribes, blackmail. The technique of their accomplishment always had been a marvel, even to those who were links in Spike's chain of shady pursuits.

Spike was the big shot, the magnet, the brains, the one most feared, the one most hated.

Sam Sykes was a man whose mixture of fear and hate for Spike ran deepest, yet in the past when Spike whipped out an order or a rebuff, Sam was like a dog that crawled back on its paws for more.

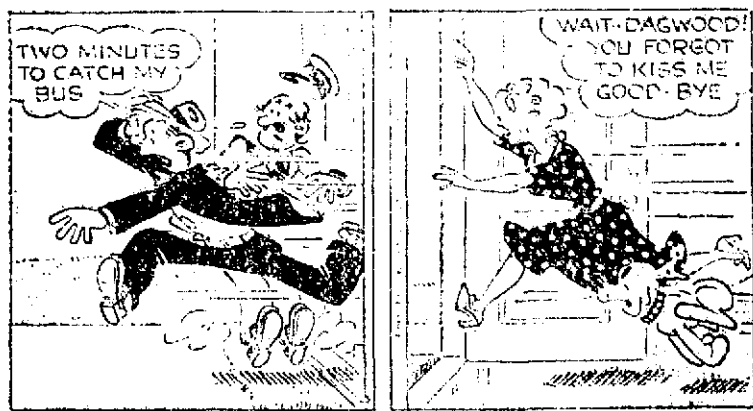

Spike knew Sam.

Linda knew that Spike got an evil pleasure in bending Sam to his will and then making Sam quiver. Both knew that Sam, however he might try, was too cowardly to pull a job alone.

Trained Worms Offer Relief to Stomach

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

ATLANTA (AP)—A mechanical "trained angle worm" offers a new and improved aid in relieving dangerous obstructions of the intestine, the Southern Medical Assn. was told today.

Two Lynchburg, Va., doctors said the new device appears to be the answer to the difficulties—and sometimes failures—marking previous methods of getting a rubber tube down through the food passageway into the intestine so as to suck out obstructing gas and fluids.

Dr. John W. Devine Jr. and his doctor, father said the problems have resulted from the fact that there are several devious curves and one outright loop in the passageway leading from the gullet down through the stomach into the duodenum, the first part of the intestine.

The new "angle worm" is a hollow piece of curved hard rubber, attached by an ingenious "swivel joint" to the fore end of a rubber suction tube which is inserted into the patient's nose and guided down through the meandering pathway into the duodenum.

The "swivel joint" is remotely controlled by a miniature speedometer cable inserted in the tube so that the doctor can swing the "angle worm" in any direction he desires.

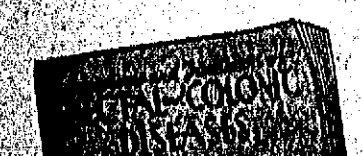

Thus, the doctors said, the entire tube can be guided, much like a crawling worm, along the tricky pathway.

The procedure is observed by an X-ray fluoroscope.

The doctors made their report in a scientific exhibit at the opening of the 47th annual meeting of the S.M.A., second largest general

PRESCOTT NEWS

Monday, October 26

The October meeting of the Prescott Band Mothers' Club will be held Monday evening at 7:30 in the home of Mrs. P.A. Farabee with Mrs. J.E. Smith co-hostess.

Wednesday, October 28

Members of the Methodist Church and their friends are invited to attend Family Night on Wednesday at 7:00 for a pot luck supper.

The Rainbow Garden Club will meet on Wednesday afternoon at 2:15 in the home of Mrs. A.B. Gordon with Mrs. Garland Ford assisting hostess.

The members of the Wednesday Bridge Club will be entertained on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Dallas Atkins at her home at 2:30.

Mrs. McMahan Entertains
47 Bridge Club
The home of Mrs. J.V. McMahan was beautifully decorated with arrangements of fall flowers and potted plants on Wednesday afternoon when she was hostess to the 47 Bridge Club.

The high score prize was won by Mrs. Bob Haynes and the cut prize by Mrs. C.H. Gray.

Mrs. Dallas Atkins and Mrs. Allen Lee were guests, other club members present included Mrs. B.A. DeLamar, Mrs. Jim Nelson, Mrs. E.H. Ward, Mrs. O.W. Watkins, Mrs. Charlie Scott, Mrs. Dudley Gordon, Mrs. J.T. Worthington, and Mrs. Charlie Deane.

A dainty dessert course carrying out the Halloween motif was served at the conclusion of the games.

Mrs. Fred White Presents
Royal Service Program
Seventeen members of the W.M.S. of the First Baptist Church met on Wednesday evening at 7:00 at the church for the Monday monthly medical organization in the nation, with members in 10 Southern states and the District of Columbia.

They said the key to the new development was the perfection of the tiny "swivel joint." They credited this to Peyton Morgan, a 72-year-old retired electrical contractor, also of Lynchburg, who succeeded, they said, after they had been unable to find an instrument maker to accomplish the trick.

The younger Devine told a reporter the device has been employed successfully in a number of cases and that an extremely small model has been developed for use in babies.

But, he added, there is still a problem of "find an instrument maker who can copy Mr. Morgan's work and cut these instruments out in any quantity."

Royal Service Program

Mrs. Wesley Lindsey opened the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Fred White presented the program topic of "A Sinful World—A Sufficient Failure" that was taken from an address given by Dr. Ralph Phillips, president of Ochsita College, Arkadelphia and was given at the Y.W.A. Conference in Ridgecraft, N.C.

Discussions were given by Mrs. Watson White Jr., Mrs. W.L. Britt, Mrs. L.L. Evans, Mrs. Clifford Ferguson, and Mrs. Roy Stranton.

At the close of the program the president, Mrs. Roy Stranton, conducted a brief business session.

The meeting adjourned with prayer by Mrs. L.L. Buchanan.

Mrs. Max Kitchen Appointed Secretary

Mrs. Max Kitchen has been appointed Home Service secretary of the Nevada County Chapter of American Red Cross to succeed A.P. Williams, resigned. It was announced Wednesday morning at a meeting of the chapters board of directors, Mrs. Lillian Mann, county chairman, announced the appointments.

C.G. Southall, field director of the Red Cross, was present at the meeting and spoke briefly on disaster work in the West, San Angelo, and El Paso, Michigan areas. He also mentioned that need for Home Nursing courses in Nevada County and the chapter tentatively set a date in January for a course to begin.

There must be at least seven persons qualified before the course can be taught. Qualifications include a high school education and some teaching experience such as boy scout or girl scout work, school Sunday School, etc. Anyone who is interested in signing up for the Home Nursing course can contact Mrs. T.E. Logan, who is chairman of that committee.

Other business included the discussion of the fund drive to be held in March, 1954.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Panchy spent Wednesday in Texarkana.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hershey of Los Angeles, Calif. visited friends here last week enroute to Chattanooga, Tenn. Mrs. Hershey will be remembered here as the former Mrs. Demetrios Bonds.

Ten Violent Deaths in Arkansas

By The Associated Press

The highway deaths of a 3-year-old Lepanto girl and a 23-year-old Fordyce man brought to 10 Arkansas violent death toll for the week ended last midnight.

Seven persons died on Arkansas highways and an explosion, a fire and a fall each claimed one life. Kenneth Gray of Fordyce was injured fatally yesterday when the car in which he was riding left Highway 107 about two miles south of Thornton.

Bobbie May Smothers was killed and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smothers of Lepanto, a brother and a sister were injured in a car-truck collision Saturday night.

Memphis hospital spokesmen said 6-year-old Phyllis Smother was hurt critically and a brother, Jimmie, 3, suffered a broken collar bone and fractures of both legs. The parents received less serious injuries.

A cathedral in Cologne took nearly 800 years to complete.

Sixty inches of snow fell in one day in 1900 at Giant Forest, California.

Dinner and Mrs. Brodie Haynes served at the annual carnival held at Fort Roots on Wednesday.

Miss Genevieve Hine of Honolulu Hawaii is the honor guest of Mr. and Mrs. W.S. Black and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Westmoreland.

Mrs. Frank McLarty of Hope was the Wednesday guest of Mrs. Berry Hesterly. She was accompanied by Mrs. Graves and Mrs. R.L. Rouch who met with the P.T.A. executive committee in the home of Mrs. Vernon Buchanan.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rix and daughter of Houston, Texas have been the guests of her mother, Mrs. Cleo Hines.

Mrs. T.H. Duke and Cathy have returned to their home in Little Rock after a visit with Mrs. E.M. Ary, Mrs. J.W. Gist, Mrs. Gordon, Sharp and Mrs. Jess Hays.

program of exchange of information and technical assistance. This program is certainly paying off in Colombia for this nation.

The rich South American republic has a tremendous agricultural potential, and technical assistance from the United States is helping the Colombians to realize that potential.

The program's activities are divided into three parts: General agriculture, agricultural education, and rubber development.

Under the program in general agriculture, a technician of the U.S. Department of Agriculture went to Colombia in late 1951 and remained for approximately 18 months, giving technical assistance in the organization and coordination of soils research, survey and classification.

He was instrumental in setting up a National Soils Committee for the exchange of information and to coordinate all phases of soils work. Prior to the establishment of the committee, many soils technicians in the country did not know of the work being carried on, and the information they received was invaluable to them.

For approximately 18 months before the technical assistance plan began early in 1952 a research advisor from the United States Department of Agriculture was assigned to the National Federation of Coffee Growers' experiment stations at Chinchipe, Caldas, to collaborate with technical personnel to organize research on the many coffee varieties of the country.

A USDA biometician joined the work for a short time to work with the technical staff of the federation in the evaluation and planning of effective experimental designs.

Under the program to develop the Colombian agriculture education system, Michigan State College and the U.S. Technical Cooperation Administration entered into an agreement in 1951 to offer technical assistance to the two national colleges of Agriculture in Colombia.

Seven Michigan State College agricultural professors went to Colombia in January 1952 to work with the agricultural schools in the development of faculty and curriculum. They represented the fields of animal husbandry, agricultural engineers, soils science, and forestry. When they returned to the U.S. at the end of their assignment, replacements took their places.

This program is expected to continue until June 30, 1955.

While the U.S. experts are in Colombia, Colombian faculty members and recently graduated students are studying at Michigan State preparatory to returning to Colombia as agricultural professionals.

The rubber development program under the technical assistance plan began early in 1952 and has made great strides already. A botanist from the USDA recently explored remote jungles of the Amazon basin in search of indigenous rubber tree varieties which might be employed in the genetic research program to develop high yielding and disease resistant domestic rubber plants on which to base a commercial rubber plantation industry. It is necessary to adapt the rubber tree to the habitat peculiar to the area of Colombia where commercial developments are feasible.

An agriculturist is working at the experimental rubber plantation of the Casa de Credito Agrario Industrial y Minero on a project to determine practical uses for coffee by-products, a program of technicians to improve methods of grain storage, a machinery school to give short courses in machinery operation, maintenance and repair, and a cooperative program under which U.S. technicians would work with the newly formed institution of Colonization and Immigration to settle sparsely settled areas of Colombia.

The rubber development program calls for a limited number of U.S. technical personnel to work with Colombian technicians in what for the most part is a demonstration and training program. The funds for this work are contributed by the governments of the U. S. and Colombia. A number of important projects are to be established, including a model extension service, a program of irrigation projects, a study to determine practical uses for coffee by-products, a program of technicians to improve methods of grain storage, a machinery school to give short courses in machinery operation, maintenance and repair, and a cooperative program under which U.S. technicians would work with the newly formed institution of Colonization and Immigration to settle sparsely settled areas of Colombia.
